Traveling in Kashmir.
Our conveyances were brought around, and we looked at them with some astonishment. There were two horses for my husband, and for myself and my little daughter were two of the state jampans, such as the court ladies would travel in. They were about the size and shape of a small boat, but most dreadfully heavy and cumbersome. They were ornamented with a great deal of gold carving gilding and vermillion. A canopy covered the top, supported on poles, and between these were curtains of crimson gauze embroidered with gold stars. The inside was lined with white velvet stamped with colored flowers, and there were more cushions than I knew what to do with. Four men carried each, and four more ran beside to relieve them. It was none too many. The weight was enormous, and all the comfort might have been secured with one-third of the material used. It seemed a shame to grumble, as everything was provided at the expense of the state, but I did pity those unfortunate bearers toward the end of our 18 mile march. Eighteen miles seemed nothing after the 60 miles we had accomplished the day before. But such an 18 miles!—Cornhill Magazine.

A True Ghost Story.
Here is a true story: The wife of a gentleman living in New Mexico lay dying in Philadelphia, but the fact was not known by the family at home. During the night a ghost—that is as good a name for it as any other—appeared at the bedside of the favorite servant and nurse, woke her and whispered, "Teresa, be good to my children!" The nurse was frightened and woke the household. She told her story, but the husband laughed at her, declaring that his wife was well and that Teresa had had a nightmare. Then, in the morning, at about 8 o'clock, a telegram came, announcing the fact that the wife had unexpectedly died the night before. Queried world we are living in, isn't it? Now, if you deny the statement and a million or two other statements of the same kind, why that is one thing, and you wouldn't be complimented by my opinion of your judgment. And if you don't deny the statement how do you account for the occurrence? What really happened, and why did it happen in just that way? Think about it for a few months.—New York Herald.

Two of Lincoln's Kind Acts.
Among the wounded Bull Run prisoners returning from Richmond after many weary months in Libby was a lad named Will Upham of the Second Wisconsin Infantry. This boy found his way into the presence of Lincoln, who sympathetically drew from him the story of his adventures in battle and in prison and sent him away with an appointment to West Point, from which academy Upham was subsequently graduated with honors. Recently this protégé of Lincoln was chosen governor of Wisconsin. One day Lincoln was found counting over and dividing into parcels a small sum in greenbacks for a negro messenger in the treasury department who was in the hospital with the smallpox, unable to sign the roll and draw his pay. The president of the United States cheerfully undertook to cut the gordian knot of red tape, procure the poor man's wages and make the desired disposition thereof.—Leslie J. Perry in Century.

Cromwell's Head.
A correspondent writes: "It may come as a surprise to many to learn that Cromwell's head, in, under the circumstances, a fine state of preservation, is at the present time in the possession of a gentleman who resides in Kent. The head was lately shown to Mr. Hamo Thornycroft, who is executing the bust of the Protector, which has been subscribed for by the ex-premier and others, and the sculptor, it is said, entertains no doubt whatever as to its genuineness. A study of the head has afforded Mr. Thornycroft material assistance, though one of the costs—of which there are several in existence—taken almost immediately after death, has probably been a safer basis in the execution of the work. The hair on the head, which is of a red, or rather auburn, color, is in perfect preservation, and so is the short beard."—St. James Gazette.

He Approved the Recipe.
"Do you know, dear," said Mr. Hummone, "that I like the way you make a Welsh rabbit?"
"Why, Charles," she exclaimed, "you know you couldn't eat the last one."
"Yes. And I want you to make 'em all just like it. Whenever I eat Welsh rabbit, I have indigestion."—Washington

Various Items of Interest Gathered About the County.

To Release John Chellev

It is wanted by some Red Jacket Parties—James Corgan married at Milwaukee.

EAGLE RIVER.
John H. Gatties, Sr., left Tuesday for the windy city on the southern shore of Lake Michigan. He will return in about ten days.

Richard C. Blight left on Wednesday for a business trip through Marquette county.

Ernest Bollman and J. P. Petermann transacted business at Copper Harbor Monday.

A movement is on foot to try and secure the release and parole of Jack Chellev who is just now boarding at the Hotel Van Evera on Iron Bay. It is being pushed by Red Jacket parties and a gentleman of this county has promised him employment and will look after him.

EAGLE HARBOR.
David Kingston returned home on Tuesday from his camp near Ashland, Wis.

Joseph Rickard, of Detroit, is paying one of his semi-occasional visits to the old folks at home. He will remain for a few days.

James Corgan, formerly of this county, now one of the successful business men of Ontonagon, was joined in wedlock to Miss Jessie Dolan, one of Ontonagon's fair daughters, on the 15th. The ceremony was performed at Milwaukee. After an extended trip east the happy couple will settle down in Jim's home at the above named place. Your scribe extends his congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy life.

EAGLE RIVER.
Sheriff Mitchell left for Phillips' Camp yesterday morning to summon witnesses for cases to come off next week at Houghton, although not a great many miles from here, it will not be a very pleasant trip as owing to the extreme fall of snow we have had recently and the light amount of travel on the roads in the lower part of the county the roads are pretty well blocked up.

Joseph Brown is down again this week at Eagle Harbor slaughtering sheep for the Kingston camp at Red Jacket. He will kill between 250 and 300 this week.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. G. Gundersen, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction, she was brought down with pneumonia, succeeding lagrippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at D. T. Macdonald's drug stores.

Sons of Scotland.

The anniversary of Bobbie Burns' birth will be commemorated by a grand entertainment at the Opera House on the evening of Saturday next under the auspices of Bannockburn Camp, Sons of Scotland, upon which occasion the best local talent will appear. Do not forget the date. Following is the program:
